

INSOLVENT PRISONERS AS A HUMANITARIAN STORY AND REVEALING SUCCESS

Many people may wonder, what is the insolvent project?, How it can be implemented? Who is the Insolvent? , How can the National Prisoner Foundation have access to their stories?

Here, we can give account for such questions:

Insolvent issues can be considered as thorny due to being associated for one hand to grievance, social tragedy and to oblivion in the other hand. Insolvents' issues determinants usually are nothing more than debtor and creditor treated the same before the jurisdiction that consider not the insolvents' suffering and tragedy experienced in prison that may level up to grievance.

Under the sense of humanitarian responsibility, National Prisoner Foundation has led the initiative to extend the hand of help to those hopeless insolvent prisoners so to bring happiness back to their families. Therefore, NPF has worked diligently in the pursuit of achieving of this goal starting with a field survey for more than 30 prisons in Yemen with serious and legal planning to monitor many insolvency cases.

For the survey purposes, standards have been developed for the selection of insolvents for release. Standards have been set on humanitarian and legal basis. Standard one was that the prisoner had no bad intentions and the case was out of his/her control. The humanitarian standards includes questions like whether the prisoner is the only breadwinner, how many family members does he have?, was he/she enrolled to college? , what is his physical and mental health state?, and most importantly that his case shall be non-criminal and just.

During selection process, NPF strongly adopted these standards and started working in 2016 with fund of businessmen to bring hope and smile to the prisoners' families gradually. About one year since project start, NPF assisted and released (135) prisoner drawing back the smile on their faces through assistance over (137) million YR provided after application of the previous standards.

It is worth mentioning that NPF does not provide the financial support funded by businessmen and some companies haphazardly without a plan and standards, however there are several stages followed for the selection or rejection, including getting info from the prisoner, his family ,the suiter and the verdicts followed by NPF quest of search for funder to make the prisoners 'dream of freedom come true.

NPF with its funders every year is keen to contribute significantly and continuously within this project.

NPF is hopeful that coming year 2017 will achieve greater success in alleviating the suffering of insolvent calling upon all on behalf of mothers waiting to embrace their sons , a child dreamed to see his father again, and the future awaits the insolvent prisoner to achieve freedom and see the light again, be done only by the assistance of businessmen, corporations and philanthropists upon which NPF hope is based on to restore insolvents' liberty and smile again.
