What's Insolvent Prisoners Assistance Project?

We seek, through "Insolvent Prisoner Assistance" to help insolvent prisoners to get released, paying off their private rights (amounts due to others), after they serve entire sentences and meet selection criteria and assistance conditions.

Implementation Phases:

Collecting Data Phase: In this phase, a team of NPF's lawyers carry out field surveys in central prisons and corrections on insolvent prisoners' issues and receive insolvent prisoners' issues at NPF headquarter.

Selection Phase: In this phase, a committee of legal experts, headed by Director of the Department of Legal Affairs, checks out the collected insolvent prisoners' information to select states that meet assistance conditions and selection criteria.

Phase of Reconciliation between Prisoners and Rights holders: At this phase, NPF team negotiates with rights holders to persuade them giving up some of the amounts that the prisoners due according to the sentences issued by prosecutions and courts, and tries converging views to resolve the dispute between the prisoner and the right holder.

Phase of Fundraise and Payment: In such phase, NPF launches a campaign to raise funds from philanthropists, businessmen, and companies in favor of insolvent prisoners.

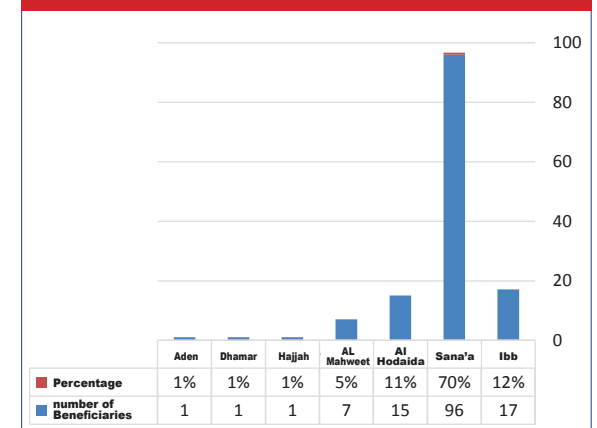

Release Phase: After raising funds, NPF team pays amounts on insolvent prisoners' behalf; NPF pays through prosecutions and courts, deposit required funds in insolvents' balances at the public prosecution, or directly deliver cash payment to the right holder after the closure of the case file. Finally, NPF gets the release order.
